

Today I am going to the CARE lab. The CARE lab does research about how kids think.

First, I will go into a waiting room, where I can play games and relax.

In the waiting room, I will meet the research team. I can choose if I want to participate. I can say “no” or “I am done” at any time.

When I am ready, I will go into the space lab to do some activities on a computer!

First, the researcher will put a cap on my head.
The cap will be a little wet and cold, just like when I go swimming.

I will see pictures and hear sounds from the computer in the Space Lab. My job is to sit still.

Then, the research person will take the cap off.
My hair might be a little wet. Then, I will get a certificate for helping science. Then, I can leave!
